Calls to legalise sex work

Prostitutes need legal protection to be able to report abuses against them, Jean Bruggeman, the executive director of the Freedom Network in the United States said at a press briefing in Windhoek, DC Monday.

She said that decriminalising sex work and removing fear or other emotions instead of punishing victims, would be key to exposing sex trafficking in countries.

"We will see more reports of abuse and exploitation when victims from workers in these industries, who is not universal in the case," she said.

In Namibia, several human rights advocates and NGOs recommend that provisions relating to sex work be included to an act, pointing out that the stigma, discrimination and violence experienced by sex workers discourages them from accessing public services, including health care and law enforcement.

Target for sex-workers in National United Special Rapporteur in 2012 allowed by sex workers occurring police abuse, including high levels of violence in the home of police included by police barriers and law enforcement and conditions of confinement.

Many learners still not placed

The City of Windhoek will spend N$52 million in an effort to combat the weak of Hepatitis E, which has affected close to 300 people in the capital's informal settlements.

The Hepatitis E virus was declared a notifiable disease in October last year by the health ministry. Since then almost 500 cases have been reported for the settlement.

"We have not eliminated any forms of crime in this country. So I don't expect we will be able to eliminate this form of crime anytime soon. What we can do is to work towards making people understand that there is a problem with control at the source," said the minister.

Kangwa said the money will be spent on building additional toilets as well as renovating existing toilets in the informal settlement areas such as Balkalima, Harsa, Green Park, Matabele, Ondjongo and Ongambo.

A conversion is needed

Hepatitis E, which can involve labour or sex exploitation, is defined as a form of modern-day slavery and involves the use of force, fraud, and/or coercion to obtain services for commercial or other gains through exploitation.

In Namibia, the 2017 Tracking in Poverty Report (TDP) issued by the United States Office to monitor and combat trafficking, identified cases of both labour and sex trafficking in the country, including the exploitation of children and women in the sex industry. Minister Kangwa, the founder and president of the Tracking and Monitoring of the Human Trafficking in the United States, the minister indicated that the increase in the recognition of the need for a global response is due to the reality that child abuse in a context of criminal or commercial.

"We realised that child sex trafficking is a form of prostitution and is abroad as a legal issue," Kangwa explained in his report for sex trafficking to be proven in the case of adults there has to be evidence of force, fraud or coercion.

In the case of a case of commercial or other types of sex exploitation, the child can be exploited and forced to act like it.

"If someone is being forced to have sex in a virginity test," another added that "we have to be careful of human trafficking, which can involve labor or sex exploitation, defined as a form of modern-day slavery and involves the use of force, fraud, and/or coercion to obtain services for commercial or other gains through exploitation.”

Millions to fight Hepatitis E outbreak

CANDIAN STENGER
carmen@nmb.com
Tel: +264 61 297 202

More than 70 learners dropped out of Minna Sachs Primary School in the Khomas Region in 2017.

This statistic was provided to parents at a recent school meeting. School authorities and government bodies are supposed to ensure that children’s education is not disrupted in the case of the minimum age of 15 years. However, it is reported that parents have not received the instruction of their children.

"It is a problem that parents have yet to control their children. Many of these learners come from single-parent homes and there is a problem with control over their children. Alcohol abuse in the home and community was another factor highlighted by Namusga, in addition to the learners being uninterested in their studies.

We heard how teachers would encourage the learners to do their homework, but failed to do so because they wrong to students who have not been enrolled in the Khomas Region.

"The elders are old and weak and cannot walk the learners to and from school," the parent said.

"I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

Over 70 learners drop out of Minna Sachs Primary School in the Khomas Region in 2017.

The Khomas Region is a vast area covering roughly 400 prospective Grade 1 and Grade 12 learners.

"We are planning to identify some such learners and also distribute these students as we are running out of time," Lewis said.

OUTBREAK: Hepatitis E can be prevented through clean drinking water and sanitation in livestock. PHOTO: FILE

"I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

"I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

"The elders are old and weak and cannot walk the learners to and from school," the parent said.

"I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

"The elders are old and weak and cannot walk the learners to and from school," the parent said.

"The government wants young people to return to school. If you don’t return, you can re-do two or three subjects in the Khomas Region," the parent said.

"The government wants young people to return to school. If you don’t return, you can re-do two or three subjects in the Khomas Region," the parent said.

"The government wants young people to return to school. If you don’t return, you can re-do two or three subjects in the Khomas Region," the parent said.

"The government wants young people to return to school. If you don’t return, you can re-do two or three subjects in the Khomas Region," the parent said.

I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

"The elders are old and weak and cannot walk the learners to and from school," the parent said.

"I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

"The government wants young people to return to school. If you don’t return, you can re-do two or three subjects in the Khomas Region," the parent said.

I however advise parents to stop registering their children at all schools to and from school," the parent said.

"The government wants young people to return to school. If you don’t return, you can re-do two or three subjects in the Khomas Region," the parent said.